

All information (including graphics and web site design) contained on SPRonline is copyright © 1999-2005 by the Society for Pediatric Radiology and shall remain the property of the Society.

SPR material (information, text, images, etc.) can be used or distributed only if this copyright notice remains intact in every document or piece of information, and a link to the SPR web site (<http://pedrad.org>) is included. Please send an e-mail to spr@acr.org notifying the use of materials from the SPR website and any pages contained within. Your feedback is also welcome.

Information and images or other forms of media that are included in this site and are obtained from other servers shall remain the copyright of the managers of those servers and the authors of the respective documents.

The information provided on SPRonline is intended to educate the reader about certain medical conditions and certain possible treatments. It is not a substitute for examination, diagnosis, and medical care provided by a licensed and qualified health professional. If you believe you, your child, or someone you know, suffers, or may suffer from conditions described on this website, please see your healthcare provider.

Do not attempt to treat yourself, your child, or anyone else without proper professional medical supervision provided by a licensed medical practitioner.